

Travel Blog Network Unveiled at www.365.travel

No need to call your family and friends during travel, keep them up to date with a post in your travel blog

Recently launched, www.365.travel is a travel blog network that brings together travelers from all over the world. Users of 365.travel are all individuals that enjoy travel and have taken advantage of the free travel blogs provided by 365.travel to track and tell their travel stories.

It is becoming increasingly popular for travelers to create travel blogs and update them during their journeys. Today's travelers want to document their daily adventures in journal entries and pictures for their friends, family, and followers to view.

"I liked the sound of the .travel extension, and although the cost was significantly more than other extensions, I realized that I could obtain a more attractive website with .travel," commented co-owner of 365.travel, Robert Geoghegan, "As the .travel extension says exactly what it does, 'on the packet', I feel it has helped us gain a foothold in an extremely competitive area."

Since 2007, traffic has been steadily rising for www.365.travel. In April 2008, 365.travel reported 19,600 visits. Additionally, 365.travel witnessed 269,832 page views last month and the number continues to increase.

It is easy to join the 365.travel community and get your own travel blog for free. Not only is a travel blog cost effective as compared to international phone calls or the unnecessary hassle of purchasing phone cards, but they are a great way to preserve memories. With a travel blog, you can keep a multi-media diary with photos, videos, and more to last forever.

To learn more about joining the 365.travel community and starting your own personal travel blog, please visit www.365.travel.